SURVIVOR FOUND CLINGING TO BOAT

NFL players still missing, Coast Guard says

Associated Press

TAMPA A missing man found clinging to an overturned boat was rescued Monday off Florida's Gulf Coast, but the search continued for two NFL players and another man aboard who didn't return from a weekend fishing trip.

Survivor Nick Schuyler, a former University of South Florida player, told rescuers that the 21-foot boat was anchored when it flipped Saturday evening in rough seas and that the others got separated from the boat, Capt. Timothy Close said. Since then, Schuyler, who was wearing a life vest, had been hanging onto the boat found by a Coast Guard cutter 35 miles off Clearwater.

The boat belongs to Oakland Raiders linebacker Marquis Cooper, who along with free-agent defensive lineman Corey Smith and former South Florida player William Bleakley, remained missing. TV footage showed Schuyler conscious but weak as he was being taken off a helicopter at Tampa General Hospital and placed on a stretcher. The hospital declined immediate comment.

Schuyler's mother, Marsha Schuyler, said her son told her that he survived by thinking about how he didn't want her to go to his funeral.

The family's joy at him being found alive was tempered by the search for his friends.

"We still have three men missing, and we're not going to talk too much until we find these guys," said his father, Stuart Schuyler. "We're all praying for them. These guys are all very close friends."

Close said the Coast Guard would search for the men for "quite a while."

A Coast Guard helicopter Monday transports one of the missing boaters found alive to Tampa General Hospital in Tampa. AP

The four left Clearwater Pass early Saturday in calm weather, but heavy winds picked up through the day and the seas got heavy, with waves of 7 feet and higher, peaking at 15 feet on Sunday. A relative alerted the Coast Guard early Sunday after the men did not return as expected.

Stuart Schuyler said his son was in serious condition but stable.

"He looks OK," Stuart Schuyler said. "He's got some cuts and bruises. He's dehydrated."

By Monday morning, the Coast Guard had searched about 16,000 square miles of ocean for the Everglades-manufactured boat, which is built with compressed foam encased in Fiberglas, making it difficult to sink.

Cooper and Smith, who were teammates with the Tampa Bay Buccaneers in 2004, have been on fishing trips before, according to Ron Del Duca, Smith's agent.

Flu drug proving futile against new strain

Chicago Tribune

An important antiviral drug no longer works against this season's most prevalent type of flu, which has mutated into a resistant strain, researchers reported today in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

That drug—sold as Tamiflu in the U.S.—was one arrow in a very small quiver of antiviral medicines used to battle influenza. With Tamiflu no longer effective against this particular flu strain, known as H1N1, physicians are left with one called zanamivir, which has problems of its own. The drug, which is inhaled, is not recommended for some of the very populations that would need it most: Very young children and people with respiratory problems.

For those people, CDC officials recommend a combination of Tamiflu and another antiviral called rimantadine, which was the subject of a flu resistance scare of its own in 2006.

With so many problems with the antivirals, public health officials are urging people to get a flu shot, which offers good protection this year against the H1N1 strain.

"Flu season is still peaking," said Michael Koller, a doctor of internal medicine at Loyola University Medical Center, who noted that he started seeing a rise in flu patients around the first week of February. "There is no sign we are on our way down. It is not too late."

OUR ROTTEN ECONOMY

AIG gets 4th lifeline

The government on Monday unveiled a revamped rescue package to insurance giant American International Group and will provide the troubled company with another $30 billion in taxpayer money on an "as needed" basis.

In an interview on NBC's "Today" show Monday morning, AIG Chairman and Chief Executive Edward Liddy said: "We're going to be able to pay back the Federal Reserve. The new $30 billion is a standby line."

But Liddy backed off earlier statements about paying back taxpayers in full within two years.

The announcement came as AIG, once the world's largest insurer, reported Monday it lost $61.7 billion in the fourth quarter, the biggest quarterly loss in U.S. corporate history.

This is the fourth time the government has stepped in to help AIG. The existing aid package totals some $150 billion.

$62 billion

That's about how much AIG managed to lose in just 92 days. The insurance giant's quarterly loss reported Monday was the biggest in corporate history, topping the previous record of about $45 billion set by Time Warner Inc. during the fourth quarter of 2002.

Stocks slide

Investors' despair and the recession have brought the Dow Jones industrial average to another unwanted milestone: its first drop below 7,000 in more than 11 years. The Dow's value has fallen more than half since it hit a record high over 14,000 in October 2007.

Poor reports

Consumer spending rose in January after falling for a record six straight months, but the increase is expected to be fleeting given all the problems facing the economy. A batch of fresh reports Monday showed little signs of an economic rebound.

Riders have beef with the CTA grief

Good grief. Riders responded with a range of emotions to last week's "Going Public," which explored the seven stages of CTA grief, from denial to acceptance. Check out their comments, other observations and lost-and-found items.

Add another stage

An additional stage that was not covered in your feature: Apathy. That's where I am. I am a rider, and I actually don't mind the few daily inconveniences, such as faulty equipment, filthy trains and buses, chronic tardiness, lies about the end of construction and slow-downs, and just generally craptacular service. I usually just view it all with a weary eye and quickly turn my attention to something else. Doomsday proclamations and stories about layoffs? Don't care. It's probably their own fault.

Incompetent mayoral appointments to CTA's head position? Yawn. What's new? Trash piled up on a train car and a reeking derelict lying in it? I've seen it all, and I just can't muster up the commiserate concern. Years of the CTA will do that to you.

—FOSTER C. GARVIN III, 37, ROGERS PARK

State of shock

Carole Brown seems to have only one stage: denial. She was also "shocked" and "unaware" of the whole Block 37 mess. Sounds like it's time for a new board president, one who actually isn't in a constant state of confusion and ignorance. Is anyone not aware of the way the economy is going, and that property tax transfer revenues are way down due to record foreclosures? Evidently Carole is the only one. —KEVIN BLACK, 46, ROGERS PARK

Don't whistle while you work

[The] bus driver whistled loudly during the entire trip on the southbound [No. 148-Clarendon Michigan Express] bus that arrived at Montrose and Clarendon at 8 a.m. I mean loud, distracting whistling. Could you please request that this driver not whistle while he works? It's annoying, rude and probably unsafe for the riders, as he seemed to be concentrating more on his whistling than his driving.

—JOE MOLSBY, 39, LAKEVIEW

Lost: Purse, memento missing

On [Feb. 19], on the Red Line train, I lost my purse. It's black, looks like a back pack, and has everything in it: my cell, wallet, cards, home keys and money. All I ask for is the keys back. I need them, and they hold a sentimental thing on them that was given to me by my father who passed. —CICELY JONES 29, EDGEWATER

Found: Cell phone

I was on the No. 8-Halsted bus going northbound at 4:20 p.m. on Jan. 30. A customer lost their cell phone in the seat by the back exit. I gave it to the female driver to turn in. Sorry, I didn't get her ID number, but she appeared to be an honest person. Hope the missing cell phone person sees this alert. —DENISE FRENCH, 35, SOUTH CHICAGO # got latte?

A battle is brewing as fast food chains target coffee concoction

By Leonor Vivanco
REDEYE

Melissa Singson, 25, starts her morning with breakfast: no cereal, just a latte.

"It's pretty much the only time of day I get my calcium," said Singson, who lives in Streeterville.

The Northwestern law school student said she orders up the combination of espresso and steamed milk at least twice a day and supplements her caffeine addiction with regular coffee throughout the day.

While she said it gets expensive to drink lattes all the time, she finds her preferred coffee drink comforting.

"It feels like the day's not that bad. It's going to be OK," she said.

Lattes are getting a whole lotta love these days, and they've become part of the new battleground in the war between popular coffee and fast food chains.

Starbucks is pairing lattes with oatmeal and coffee cake for $3.95 starting Tuesday. McDonald's has been luring Chicago coffee drinkers with free 8-ounce lattes on "McCafe Mondays." The fast food giant's promotion began in December to expose people to its specialty coffee line and runs through April 13.

Dunkin' Donuts is getting in on the action. Last fall, Dunkin' launched "America's Latte Break," selling a small afternoon latte for 99 cents.

The latte has become the top-ordered espresso-based drink at Starbucks, Starbucks CEO Howard Schultz told RedEye Monday.

"When we came to Chicago in the late '80s, very few, if any, people knew what a cafe latte was when they came into our stores. In fact, the most popular drink in our stores was a cappuccino, because that's what people knew," he said.

"So over the course of almost 20 years, we have educated the country and really changed the culture around espresso-based beverages, and the signature drink was the cafe latte. And certainly the popularity of that drink has grown significantly in large part because of Starbucks," Schultz said.

The number of restaurant chains offering lattes and specialty coffee on their menus has grown in the past year, according to Technomic Information Services, a Chicago-based food service consultant. But consumer willingness to pay as much as $4 for specialty coffee is waning, said Sara Monnette, Technomic's senior manager of consumer and market research.

That's where chains, like McDonald's, are stepping in with lower-priced alternatives and trying to get a taste of that business, she said. She said she expects to see more promotions offered to draw in customers to sample specialty coffee drinks.

BRIAN J. MOROWCZYNSKI FOR REDEYE

Price is a selling point for coffee drinkers like Chris Stortenbecker, 26, a teacher who lives in West Rogers Park. "Lately I've been drinking coffee mostly because it's stronger caffeine-wise and it's cheaper," he said.

But while a latte is more expensive than a regular cup of joe, it still is a reasonable drink option, said Kristin Figard, 26, a musician who lives in Evanston. "I like the price, and it has a flavor without it being too strong," Figard said.

The number of people trying lattes probably is growing now that lattes are more widely offered, said Matt Milletto, vice president of Bellissimo Coffee InfoGroup, a specialty coffee consultant based in Portland, Ore.

Even though lattes are becoming more mainstream and espresso drinks are popular, it's hard to find comparative data to show whether there has been an increase in sales or orders of lattes in particular. Still, items in the specialty coffee category, which includes lattes, were ordered 10 percent more often in 2008 than in 2007, according to NPD Group, a market research company.

The specialty coffee market is growing while overall cof-

Taster's choice

RedEye and Metromix staffers took a field trip to five downtown locations to taste their lattes. We ordered one plain latte with 2 percent milk and no syrups or sugar added. The latte was poured into separate small cups for tasting. This was not a blind test. The tasters knew which company made the latte to ensure that the drink was tasted at the right temperature, right after it was made. We judged the lattes on appearance, aroma, texture and flavor. We provided comments, and gave an overall numerical score: 1 to 9, with 9 being the highest. LEONOR VIVANCO, REDEYE

$3.65 for a 20-ounce Venti Caffe Latte, 18.3 cents per ounce (two shots of espresso)

Comments:

- » Smooth, velvety but not heavy. Nice.
- » Lighter than milk. Heavier than tea. Almost Chai-like.
- » Easy to drink but not very tasty, watered-down; weak coffee taste.
- » Bland without sugar. Not rich but not awful.
- » Coffee bitterness on the sides of the tongue but mostly smooth; slightly "boiled milk" flavor.
- » Little froth. Kinda gray, like dirty rainwater.

Comments:

- » Dirty water. Flavorless. Bitter aftertaste.
- » Tastes like chalk with milk. Extremely bitter.
- » Pleasant ... like the girl next door, kind of OK. Potential.
- » Smells like fresh-brewed coffee and coffee mate.
- » Bubbly-liquidy, more like coffee than latte.
- » Medium bodied, no foam.

COFFEE TALK

The menu at a coffee shop can be overwhelming. This glossary of basic coffee drinks will let you know what you're getting with your order. REDEYE

Americano

Cup filled to 1 inch from the top with hot water from espresso machine. A shot of espresso is added and stirred gently.

Cafe au lait

Cup half-full with drip coffee, topped with steamed milk and a small amount—about half an inch—of milk foam.

Cappuccino

Espresso coffee combined with a velvety milk foam, served in a 5- to 6-ounce ceramic cup.

Espresso con panna

Single or double shots of espresso extracted directly into a demitasse (a small cup used to serve espresso) and topped with a small amount of whipped cream.

Latte

Steamed milk poured over espresso and topped with half an inch of milk foam. Similar to the cappuccino, but with much less foam and more steamed milk.

Mocha

Same as the latte, but with either powdered chocolate or chocolate syrup added at the beginning of drink preparation.

AMERICAN BARISTA & COFFEE SCHOOL, BELLISSIMO INC.

THE PERFECT CUP

What makes a good latte? Combining well-prepared espresso with milk steamed properly to the right temperature "can be a heavenly experience, with the sweetness of the coffee with the milk," said Matt Milletto, director of the American Barista & Coffee School in Portland, Ore. "Preparing them incorrectly can produce a bitter, burnt-tasting beverage by oversteaming the milk or overextracting the coffee," he said.

fee consumption is not, said Harry Balzer, vice president of NPD Group.

But coffee industry insiders are concerned about the quality as specialty coffee becomes more automated and mass produced.

At the same time fast food-type companies compete with Starbucks, independent retailers are focusing on "high-quality, high-standard beverages," Milletto said.

There's a difference in quality among fast-food chain restaurants and independent coffee houses, he said.

"A good latte starts with excellent espresso blend, good quality milk and, most importantly, a well-trained barista," said Milletto, also director of the American Barista & Coffee School in Portland.

And taste matters, especially to latte drinker Karen Parker, 41. "It just tastes better, a creamy taste. I don't like the taste of coffee, black coffee," said Parker, who lives in the Gold Coast.

As coffee drinkers judge lattes on taste, coffee experts judged lattes on appearance at Coffee Fest's Millrock Free Pour Latte Art Championship last month at Navy Pier.

Competitor Matt Gasaway, 20, a Columbia College student, was a finalist in the competition. He said he got plenty of practice pouring tulip and rosetta designs for his customers at the Italian Coffee Bar in Streeterville and Evanston, where he works.

Lattes are easy to drink, the barista said, if they're sweet and not bitter. Making a perfect latte at the right temperature and with the right combination of milk and foam is the crucial step to creating latte art, Gasaway said.

"Some people have said it's too beautiful to drink, and I say, 'I only hope it tastes as fantastic as it looks.'"

Starbucks debuts Via

By Leonor Vivanco

REDEYE

Starbucks introduces its instant coffee, Via Ready Brew, on Tuesday in Chicago stores—and with samples passed out from Via-cles driving around the city.

Insisting the microground Via isn't like other instant coffees, which he called flavorless and "stale," Starbucks CEO Howard Schultz told RedEye that Via uses freshly roasted beans and replicates the taste of the coffee brewed in Starbucks stores. A three-pack of single servings of Colombia or Italian Roast costs $2.95. A box of 12 costs $9.95. Both are now sold online, at Chicago stores and, by the end of the month, at Target, Costco and Barnes and Noble locations in Chicago.

RedEye sat down with Schultz to find out more about Via.

Why have you decided to roll out the new Via product in Chicago (along with Seattle and London)?

One [reason] is that Chicago is a very big brewed coffee market for Starbucks. The second, for me personally, it seems like a natural extension, almost symmetry of our history, because Chicago was the first market that we opened Starbucks stores in outside of the Northwest in the late '80s. So it felt right.

People tend to make fun of instant coffee and its taste. Do you think this Starbucks product will change people's perceptions?

We think it's going to reinvent the category and transform the coffee industry as we did when we started opening up our stores around the country. Before that, people really didn't really know what a cafe latte was or espresso-based beverages. This, I think, is a natural extension of the innovation, and that's why I'm so excited, because we think we've done it again.

How would you describe Via in three words?

I just have two words: fantastic coffee.

Quinn says take focus off Burris

Gov. Quinn on Monday backed off on his call for lawmakers to press ahead with a special election that could effectively remove embattled U.S. Sen. Roland Burris from office. Emerging from a meeting with African-American elected leaders, Quinn said it's time for the state to get past the controversy surrounding Burris and focus on other issues, such as jump-starting the economy.

Boy, 12, takes family SUV

A 12-year-old Naperville boy who took the family SUV from his home Monday morning was found unharmed at O'Hare, police said. Police said the boy has a history of sleepwalking, but they do not believe it had anything to do with his disappearance. Police established he was going south on College Road by following tracks in the snow. "The tracks were all over the place. It was pretty apparent it was an inexperienced driver," Police Commander Dave Hoffman said. TRIBUNE

The Blago book deal

Former Gov. Rod Blagojevich has landed a book deal, his publicist said Monday.

The ousted governor will focus on "the discussions, the considerations and the factors involved in picking" a successor to President Obama in the U.S. Senate, according to a release from Blagojevich's publicity agency.

Blagojevich was arrested on Dec. 9 on federal corruption charges for, among other things, trying to sell the seat in exchange for campaign donations or other favors.

His publicity agent, Glenn Selig, said the deal is worth six figures.

The book's working title is "The Governor" and it's scheduled for release in October.

Northeast pounded by storm

A massive late winter snowstorm pummeled the Northeast on Monday, grounding hundreds of flights, causing spinouts on highways, delaying trains and buses and closing school for over a million children from South Carolina to Maine.

The same storm hammered the Southeast on Sunday.

By Monday, the storm was dumping snow on Maine, and most areas in the storm's wake expected to see at least 8 to 12 inches of accumulation.

The snow—together with sleet, freezing rain and wind gusts of up to 30 mph—contributed to four deaths on roads in Massachusetts, Rhode Island and on Long Island.

An accident caused a 15-mile-long traffic jam in North Carolina, where as much as a foot of snow fell, and prompted police and rescuers to go car-to-car Monday to check on the stranded motorists.

The storm was blamed for 350 crashes in New Jersey between Sunday night and Monday morning, state police Sgt. Stephen Jones said. Most were spinouts and cars hitting guardrails, he said.

On Long Island, high winds caused 2-foot snow drifts on highways in the town of Southampton.

BY THE NUMBERS

900+: Flights canceled at the three major airports serving New York City

44: Travelers stranded overnight Sunday into Monday at Philadelphia International Airport

8 inches: Parts of upstate South Carolina recorded at least this much snow

1.1 million: This many public school students in New York City got a snow day

300,000+: Total customers in Virginia, North Carolina and South Carolina without power at the height of the storm

LeBron or D-Wade? A no-lose situation

We asked RedEye's Twitter followers: Whom would you rather have on your team: LeBron James or Dwyane Wade?

@kamilf Neither. Kevin Garnett based solely on his performance in the Gatorade commercial spoof of "Monty Python and the Holy Grail."

@goldentrain Dwyane Wade for sure! He is a much better ball-handler and is better at blocking than LeBron is.

@solarpowerspork Dwyane Wade, it's more fun to say!

@apeiam There's no comparison. King James for sure. D-Wade's a good player and all, but he doesn't bring as much to the table as LBJ.

@cathomas LeBron because I never stopped laughing at his awesome Nike pool dive commercial.

@mwwdesigns LeBron James, due to the fact that people have compared him to M. Jordan. Plus entering the 2010 dunk contest is a plus.

@SaraMartinez Dwyane Wade because he's from Oak Lawn.

@ondraceka LeBron all the way. He can play for the Browns, too!

@mtmaloney One is the best player in basketball. The other is Dwyane Wade. Seems like an easy decision.

@dsmoore LeBron James, especially if we get his acting skills too.

@Chips4Chicago Definitely LeBron. Way more consistent. If anyone can bring us back to MJ days, it's him.

@WGNNews Pat Tomasulo. I mean, he doesn't have to go in, but talk about an entertaining bench. COMPILED BY SCOTT KLEINBERG

LeBron James and Co. top Dwyane Wade's Heat in Miami shootout

Associated Press

MIAMI This time, the Miami Heat were witnesses, not winners, because of a fourth-quarter comeback.

LeBron James scored 42 points, Mo Williams got 17 of his 30 in the fourth quarter, and the Cleveland Cavaliers rallied from an 11-point deficit in the final minutes to beat the Heat 107-100 on Monday night.

Dwyane Wade had 41 points, nine assists and seven rebounds for Miami, strongly following up his 46-point effort two nights earlier against the New York Knicks, when the Heat rallied from 15 points down in the last 9 minutes.

That was enough to win. This effort wasn't.

James and Wade seemed like they were having a personal slam-dunk contest in the opening minutes of the final period.

James had a steal and two-handed windmill offering to get Cleveland within seven; Wade came back shortly thereafter with a steal and double-clutch reverse for an 91-80 Miami edge.

Deng wants to play

No MRI is needed to confirm that Luol Deng's numbers have been injured since the arrival of John Salmons.

Whether that's a coincidence or calamity is open to interpretation. This is for sure: Deng said he plans to play Tuesday in Charlotte, coach Vinny Del Negro said he expects Deng to play but wasn't as definitive, and Salmons is waiting in the wings.

Neither Deng nor Tim Thomas practiced Monday, although both are listed as day-to-day, and Deng's outlook brightened considerably Sunday when an MRI ruled out a stress fracture of his right tibia. CHICAGO TRIBUNE

Not even close.

Cleveland ran off 12 straight points—the first eight coming in a span of 1:23, with Williams getting a pair of 3-pointers to quickly snap the Cavs right back into the game. And his leaning layup with 4:07 left not only gave Cleveland the lead, it had a crowd that spent most of the night chanting "M-V-P" at Wade actually booing for the first time.

They didn't have much to cheer the rest of the way, either.

FACEOFF

Dwyane Wade vs. LeBron James

They are two of the NBA's brightest young stars.

They are likable and marketable off the court too. They make a lot of money. But who's the true score? Tipoff for a faceoff.

NICKNAME

Dwyane: D-Wade, Flash
LeBron: King James

HE'S NO. 1

Dwyane: Won an NBA title with Miami in 2006 and was named the Finals MVP

LeBron: NBA scoring champ last season

BUMMER

Dwyane: Embroiled in an ugly divorce in which his wife accused him of giving her an STD

LeBron: Often is criticized for publicly cheering for the New York Yankees instead of the Cleveland Indians

ENDORSEMENTS

Dwyane: Gatorade, T-Mobile, Converse, Sean John

LeBron: Nike, Sprite, Bubblicious

WINNER

It's very close, but Dwyane gets it on the strength of an NBA title. That is why they play, right?

Dwyane Wade returns to earth after dunking the ball Monday. AP

1 Besides the Anaheim Ducks (at the Hawks on Tuesday), what fictional team could be a real team?	The Bad News Bears.	With a little effort, Notre Dame football.	Rockford Peaches. When women get a league of their own, Johnny Damon can stop pretending.	The Ninja BlackSox from Baseball Stars for the NES. I'd pay to watch Hanzo play.	Bad News Bears. The baseball team, not the current football one. @gordondym
2 Come up with a Blackhawks rumor for Wednesday's trade deadline.	If it doesn't involve acquiring Toe Blake then I'm not interested.	Continuing to load up on defenders, the Redskins will sign Duncan Keith to a $100 million contract.	"Free Hard Hat Night" will be followed by "Free Toolbelt Night." Bring your fave tool!	Saturday's lineup intro: (heavy guitar) "GOOD GAWD, that's Ilya Kovalchuk's myuu-sic!" (fireworks)	They trade all their places and get a whole new team. @djshelly
3 How will you show your U.S. spirit during the World Baseball Classic?	By acknowledging it's just as important as any other Spring Training game.	By marching right up to Derek Jeter and demanding bailout money.	Snogging Bill Clinton. Like Hillary, I want to be the face of a nation.	The only way I know how: holding two lit Roman candles in the back yard and spinning.	I'll be at the corner bar draped in a silky American flag and that's all. @phantomtweeter
4 Why was Barry Bonds' perjury trial delayed from this week?	They have to rebuild the courtroom doors so Bonds' head can get inside.	Court architects are having trouble fitting witnesses' heads through the door frame.	He forgot to put it in his doping calendar. Outlook not good.	The courts still are backlogged from the 2008 NFL season.	He has amnesia and can't remember his lies. @littlefrogling
5 Who will be the next sports victim of the sour economy?	Manny Ramirez. He will have to settle for $45 million. Oh, Manny. I'm sorry!	The Titans or the Giants, just for the irony of it all.	A-Rod, who's had to lay off steroids. Thought steroids would be the last to see layoffs.	Scott Boras. Poor guy's got a family to feed. What, he doesn't? HA! IN YOUR FACE!	Ozzie Guillen can't pay for sensitivity training forever, folks. @kelthdow

The color of funny

Cincinnati Bengals players have had their fair share of run-ins with police, but it was Bengals fans that gave a jail official a bright idea recently.

Kenton County, Ky., changed the color of jail inmates' jumpsuits from orange to hot pink Sunday after a deputy jailer looked out over a sea of Bengals fans at Paul Brown Stadium in the fall and saw a potential problem. The orange of Bengals attire matched that of the jail jumpsuits.

"I thought, 'Man, if someone got away from here, they'd score a hot dog and get away,'" Scott Colvin, chief deputy jailer, told the Louisville-Courier Journal.

The Bengals aren't the only team with a potential problematic color scheme. Consider the following.

» Cleveland Browns: Resemble a herd of downsized UPS employees in search of a job.

» Buffalo Bills: The team's all-blue ensemble would be more at home on a sanitation worker.

» Miami Dolphins: The aqua jerseys scream rejected Marvel Comics superhero costume.

HOMETOWN HITS

ARIZONA 9, CUBS 1

Carlos Zambrano was in regular season form—when it comes to his antics on the mound. The emotional Cubs right-hander pointed to the sky after the first inning and pumped his fist after the second. He wasn't too bad when he was pitching either, striking out three in two hitless innings for the Cubs in a 9-1 loss to Arizona.

SEATTLE 5, WHITE SOX 3

Jim Thome launched a homer to right-center to drive in the White Sox's only runs in a 5-3 loss to the Seattle Mariners. Clayton Richard gave up three earned runs and an unearned run for the Sox. He struck out three.

BASEBALL Bonds' trial delayed

The perjury trial of Barry Bonds has been delayed at least through July and likely beyond, as an appeal filed by prosecutors over key evidence for the trial winds through the legal system. Prosecutors are to file their opening brief on June 1, the defense's response is due July 1, and prosecutors can submit a rebuttal by July 15.

Rich Dad Poor Dad

One dad was highly educated and intelligent;
he had a Ph.D. and had completed four years of undergraduate work in less than two years. He then went to do his advanced studies... all on full financial scholarships.

My other dad never finished the eighth grade.
Both men were successful in their careers, working hard all their lives. Both earned substantial incomes.

Yet my highly educated dad struggled financially all his life and the other dad would become one of the richest men I had ever known.

One died leaving tens of millions of dollars to his family, charities, and his church. The other left a legacy of unpaid bills. Both men were strong, charismatic, and influential.

Both men offered me advice, but they did not advise the same things.

Having two dads as advisors offered me the perspective of contrasting points of view: one of a rich man and one of a poor man. This forced me to think about, and ultimately choose, a way of thinking for myself.
A way of thinking that assures long-term wealth and true prosperity!

Get on the bus!

8 bars serve up a ride to the South Side parade

By Beth Geraci

When it comes to the South Side Irish St. Patrick's Day Parade, we know you can take care of the drinking. But better to leave the driving to someone else. Here are eight ways to hitch a ride.

Trinity Bar

2721 N. Halsted St. 773-880-9293
Gear up with $3 Guinness pints and Jameson shots at the bar before boarding the bus for a domestic beer-filled ride. At 4 p.m., board one of 15 buses to head back to the bar for half-price appetizers and $6 vodka lemonade pitchers.
Party start time: 8 a.m.
Cost: $20
Reservations: Required by March 10. 773-880-9293

John Barleycorn

3524 N. Clark St. 312-850-8196
This popular parade trip hosted by the Chicago Sport and Social Club is sure to sell out. The two-way trip includes matching T-shirts and domestic beer en route, plus $7 Coors Light pitchers at Barleycorn all day long.
Party start time: 9 a.m.
Cost: $20
Reservations: Required. chicagosocial.com

Emmit's

495 N. Milwaukee Ave.
312-563-9631
This River West pub's annual bus trip has been going strong for nearly 15 years. Wake up with bloody marys and mimosas before cruising on a coach bus custom-made with four-seater booths and stocked with beer coolers.
Party start time: 9:30 a.m.
Cost: $40
Reservations: Required. 312-563-9631

J. Patrick's Irish Bar & Grill

1367 W. Erie St. 312-243-0990
West Town's classic Irish pub shuttles debauched revelers to and fro on three school buses. Fuel up on domestic brews en route, then order $15 Coors Light buckets to keep the party going back at the bar post-parade.
Party start time: 9 a.m.
Cost: $20
Reservations: Recommended. 708-636-0909

O'Donovan's

2100 W. Irving Park Rd.
773-478-2100
This Irish pub joins the parade caravan with its first-ever parade bus trip. BYO "backpack" and lounge on a coach bus complete with 45 plush seats and a restroom—a luxury that should come in handy after a full day of imbibing.
Party start time: 10 a.m.
Cost: $25
Reservations: Recommended. chicagobarevents.com/parties

Merkle's Bar & Grill

3516 N. Clark St.
773-244-1025
At this Wrigleyville spot, a breakfast buffet will provide the needed sustenance for a day's worth of drinking. Six trusty school buses stocked with domestic beer will shuttle you to and from the parade scene.
Party start time: 9 a.m.
Cost: $25
Reservations: Required. 773-244-1025

Reggie's Music Joint

2105 S. State St. 312-949-0120
This Near South Side bar shuttles you to and from the parade in a hard-core school bus decorated with a skull and crossbones—for free! Hit the bar early for a $7 buffet and live music by Hey Negrita (10 a.m.). Post-parade, sip half-price Irish pints and jam to bands The 409s, Soraia and others. Buses make multiple trips beginning at 10:30 a.m. and return after the parade until 5 p.m.

Party start time: 9 a.m.

Cost: No cover

Reservations: None

McFadden's Restaurant and Saloon

1206 N. State Pkwy. 312-475-9450
Gold Coasters, get your motor running with a pre-parade food and drink package featuring a well-stocked brunch buffet. BYOB for the round-trip ride and swill $3 cocktails back at the bar post-parade.
Party start time: 7 a.m.
Cost: $45
Reservations: Required by March 10. alicia@mcfaddenschicago.com

Album's buzz

U2 has the critics divided with "No Line on the Horizon." Here's what's being said about it.

"The Irish quartet is once again in transition, uncertain of its destination, and producing some fascinating music along the way."

GREG KOT, TRIBUNE

"U2's celebration of life has always also been a celebration of itself, and Bono still has a gift for radiating joy in a way that feels inclusive, not egotistical."

ANN POWERS, L.A. TIMES

"[The album] is a considered and nuanced work with significant depth beneath the dense, sometimes thorny exterior. Getting there, though, requires some work."

ERIC R. DANTON, HARTFORD COURANT

"[The album] falls short of the wholesale reinvention that U2 underwent on 1991's 'Achtung Baby,' but in its best moments showcases a refreshing return to musical exploration for a band that released its debut album 29 years ago."

U2 ON THE HORIZON

MODERN ROCK LEGENDS RELEASE THEIR 12TH ALBUM

New York Times News Service

Before a recent photo shoot in London, U2 frontman Bono wanted to know what kind of walk the band should use for pose. After a discussion, the band started a proud, seasoned swagger as Bono announced, "Last gang in town!"

It wasn't exactly a joke. With its new album, "No Line on the Horizon," U2 has entered the fourth decade of a career that began in 1978, when its members were schoolmates in Dublin; they are now in their late 40s. And U2 may well be the last of the megabands: long-running, internationally recognized rockers whose every album, from "Boy" in 1980 to "How to Dismantle an Atomic Bomb" in 2004, has sold millions of copies.

In an era when CD sales have plummeted, Top 40 radio favors hip-hop and teen-pop, albums are fractured by mp3 players and the old idea of a rock mainstream seems more like a mirage, U2—Bono, guitarist The Edge, drummer Larry Mullen Jr. and

Does U2 still matter?

When U2 released its single, "Get On Your Boots," U.S. radio stations gave it a lukewarm reception; its fuzz-toned guitar riff doesn't suit Top 40 playlists full of younger, more pop-driven acts. But how does the 30-year-old band stack up against the youngsters? It's a battle of the acts. REDEYE bassist Adam Clayton—still wants to release a blockbuster.

"People don't know what's going to happen next," Bono said over a pint of Guinness after the photo shoot. "Our fans are not sure. Could we embarrass them? Maybe. Could we inspire them? Maybe. They don't know. That's very important, because when you become a comfortable, reliable friend, I'm not sure that's the place for rock 'n' roll."

"It's very hard to be relevant, so there's a lot of stake for us on this album. I know the quality of the work is there, but will it be taken? I really don't know. I'm genuinely curious. I think it might have a bumpy start."

After two albums of comparatively straightforward guitar-driven rock, "No Line on the Horizon," dropping Tuesday, takes new experimental tangents and redefines the band yet again.

One theme that runs through the album, Bono said, "is the ability to surrender, to give yourself, whether in reverie or revelry. And the journey of the artist is surely the journey away from self-conscious-

Dismantling a band's sound

New York Times News Service

Making U2's latest album, "No Line on the Horizon," wasn't easy.

The result of a convoluted two-year process, it presents a band that still is restless and impassioned, kicking formulas aside. In songs about true love, worldwide connections, transcendence and technology the music heads for extremes.

Making the album was "arduous," drummer Larry Mullen Jr. said. "There has to be a simpler way," he continued, "but we don't understand simple or easy."

At first U2 decided to record with Rick Rubin, who has produced the Dixie Chicks, Johnny Cash and Metallica.

But the group shelved the Rubin sessions and started again with a contrary strategy. Bono had been invited to the annual ecumenical Festival of Sacred Music in Fez, Morocco. He asked the other band members to join him and perhaps do some recording there during a two-week stay. To his surprise they all agreed, as did longtime producers Brian Eno and Daniel Lanois.

They rented a house and set up equipment in a courtyard open to the sky and started making music with no deadline or goal.

While hints of triple-time trance rhythms and Arabic vocal inflections occasionally surface, U2 avoided what band members call "musical tourism."

The instrumental foundations of three songs—"No Line on the Horizon," "Moment of Surrender" and "Unknown Caller"—each emerged virtually complete in a few hours. Yet after those two prolific weeks, recording stretched out for two years: in Dublin, in the south of France, in London.

U2 expects to release a companion album, which band members say will have a more meditative and processional tone, before the end of the year.

She's kicking off her first tour in five years Tuesday. U2 already had hit the stadium circuit by the time she was born in 1981.

U2 VS. JONAS BROTHERS

The middle JoBro is way cuter than the middle U2 dude.

U2 VS. BEYONCE

Bono's always been the political wonk, but it was Beyonce who performed at President Obama's inaugural ball.

"I think that's what he looks forward to," he said. "There is no end to the other thing. That struggle is ongoing. With U2 it's like, there's things you can say, well, we did that. We delivered a record. We delivered a show."

"No Line on the Horizon" sets up a worldwide stadium tour that begins in July. U2 intends to perform in the round, offering affordable seats to fans behind the stage and up front, hoping to attract a new, younger audience.

Because U2 can no longer depend on exposure through radio and MTV, it lined up major TV moments. First came the Grammys, followed by the Brit Awards on Feb. 19. Three days later, the band performed at the Echo Awards in Germany. U2 is to appear all this week on "Late Show With David Letterman." Those are prerogatives for a brand-name band, but they also are signs that U2 isn't taking anything for granted.

During rehearsals for the Brit Awards, U2 used its sound check to play Led Zeppelin's "Whole Lotta Love" in full blare, like a classic-rock cover band.

"Weddings, funerals, bar mitzvahs," Bono announced afterward. "We're available for work. U2."

ness." He paused and smiled ruefully. "Fame is all about self-consciousness."

Bono has leveraged celebrity into political clout. Part policy wonk, part showman, part charmer, he works on causes like ending extreme poverty in Africa. While he has been mocked as St. Bono, he strives not to be too single-minded.

"I feel as an artist that my job is to try and understand the forces that are shaping the world that our songs occupy," he said. "And maybe, if you get a chance, try to shape it."

The Edge suggested that being a rocker is like a vacation from Bono's political efforts.

Things that turn us on

TV

"Reaper"

7 p.m. Tuesday, CW

Ray Wise's dapper, deadpan devil dishes out the laughs as The CW's awesome comedy returns for its second season. Now that Sam Oliver (Bret Harrison) knows he's the spawn of Satan, he tries to leverage the relationship. Lots of luck, buddy—you still have to hunt down souls that have escaped from hell. The gimmick's wearing thin, sure, but Sam's pals Sock (Tyler Labine) and Ben (Rick Gonzalez), as well as some new characters, keep things interesting and devilishly insane.

FASHION

Banana Republic Ornament Bracelet

$49 at Banana Republic

This bracelet is an ornament; the bold silver charms adorn your wrist like tiny disco balls. It works with jeans and a T-shirt just as well as with futuristic cocktail dresses that are so in. Be warned: when you wear it, admirers will stop you and ask where you bought it.

MUSIC

Neko Case "Middle Cyclone"

"I'm a man-eater," Neko Case warns us in the jangling song "People Got a Lotta Nerve" from her latest album, "still you're surprised when I eat you." Case knows her gorgeous voice gives her license to sing about ugly things. "Middle Cyclone" is the kind of timeless countrified triumph that rips out your heart, but still keeps you smiling. # Will Spears' 'Circus' act fly?

She's back. (Again.) Britney Spears kicks off her first arena tour since 2004 this week, rolling her "Circus" show into New Orleans on Tuesday.

And she is "so excited!" she's quoted as saying on her official Web site, britneyspears.com. Who isn't? Everyone wants to know if this will be the pop tart's big comeback. (OK, she's had, like, a million mini-comebacks already. But will this be the big one?)

RedEye decided to analyze what's at stake with the tour, which comes to Chicago next month.

Ringleader

MAGIC
Reportedly the show features a three-ring circus and magic tricks.

PERSONAL DRAMA
She's been out of the tabloids lately, but Brit's pop still controls her financial affairs.

THE TOUR
It could be a real "Circus."

GHOSTS OF THE VMAS
Will she flop like she did at the 2007 MTV Video Music Awards?

I'm back, y'all!

We asked our Twitter followers for some predictions about Britney Spears' first tour in five years, which kicks off Tuesday. Go on tour with RedEye at twitter.com/redeyechicago.
COMPILED BY SCOTT KLEINBERG

@AnaLovesMusic In preparation, Rite Aids across America are upping their stock in lipstick and Cheetos.

@mkhaidet She's making her comeback! I'm praying she doesn't get hurt again!

@MsCarlaPauline The comeback of all comebacks.

@nyesko It ends five days after it begins.

@AaronSchalk Cut short due to the family situation. She's no Madonna.

@spicyasian "there r two types of ppl out there ... the ones that entertain and the ones that observe"...she's the first ... she'll rock it

@simonan Pain!

@egspoony I predict that Britney Spears' new tour will be such a Circus. c whut I did der?

Scandalous! (or not)

Khloe Kardashian took to her blog, khloekardashian.celebuzz.com, to clear the air: She totally was not with Chris Brown over the weekend when he was reportedly reconciling with Rihanna. "The funny part about this alleged 'news' is that I've never even met Chris Brown! ... It's so silly how rumors get started," she said of the gossip she was partying with the embattled R&B singer in Miami.

You've got Yale

Emma Watson, who plays smart girl Hermione Granger in the "Harry Potter" films, is quite the genius herself. The 18-year-old reportedly revealed via Twitter that she has been accepted to Yale, E! News reports. Should Watson choose to become a Bulldog, she'll be in good company. Meryl Streep, Jodie Foster and Claire Danes all called New Haven, Conn., home at some point.

Based on a true story?

"The Hills" star Lauren Conrad no doubt wants people to read her new novel, "L.A. Candy," to be released in June—but she doesn't want anyone to read too much into it. "Some of the characters may symbolize people in my life," writes Conrad, according to people.com, "but it is in no way calling anyone out." The book is said to be "loosely inspired" by her life.

Power moves

Lots of casting news and TV guest appearances announced. Here's the lowdown:

No Doubt

The reunited band will be performing a cover of Adam and the Ants' "Stand and Deliver," on an episode of "Gossip Girl" airing May 11, according to their Web site.

Keira Knightley

The queen of period dramas trades in corsets for clones in the sci-fi thriller "Never Let Me Go," Variety reports.

Jason Bateman and George Clooney

In "Up In The Air," Clooney stars as a corporate downsizer obsessed with collecting frequent flier miles with Bateman playing his boss, according to Variety.

Alexis Bledel

The former "Gilmore Girls" star will return to TV to guest-star on the series finale of "ER," People reported.

CASTING CALL

Small wonders

Reese Witherspoon and Sacha Baron Cohen aren't victims of the economy, they just play them in movies. The comedy megastars have signed onto a new film project called "Downsizing," Variety reports.

The concept (buckle in for this): Witherspoon and her on-screen husband (Paul Giamatti) decide they can conquer their money woes by undergoing a process to shrink themselves and retire "as little people," according to Variety. Cohen would play a little person and his twin brother, who is not a little person. Variety, however, notes that the script apparently is still a work in progress.

HOT DATE

May 30

Date that the trio who brought you Spinal Tap will bring their 30-date tour, "Unwiggled & Unplugged: An Evening with Christopher Guest, Michael McKean and Harry Shearer" to the Chicago Theatre. The band will perform songs of the popular mock rock band as well as tunes from their other band, the Folksmen from "A Mighty Wind."

THE VELVET ROPE

'Bachelor's' shocking finale

Spoiler alert! If you haven't seen "The Bachelor," look away.

In the weepy season finale, Jason Mesnick chose Melissa Rycroft over Molly Malaney in the final ceremony. But in a shocking "After the Final Rose" special, taped six weeks after the proposal and aired immediately after "The Bachelor," Mesnick revealed that he was still in love with Malaney.

"I completely fell in love with you and I knew on that last day I wanted to give you everything, but I feel like things are different," Mesnick told Rycroft. "I came here to find somebody to spend the rest of my life with. And we're not right for each other."

Rycroft said she was hurt and angry that Mesnick wouldn't give their engagement more time. "You, to me, are a liar," she said.

When Mesnick met Malaney face-to-face minutes later, he told her: "All we have is today, and I know that when I think about living in the moment it's with you."

A flabbergasted Malaney said she'd give him a shot, saying "I think we can see where things go."

Beyonce the slob?

Beyonce is no domestic diva. "I'm a little messy," she tells Ebony magazine in the April issue, for which she's the cover girl. "Whenever I'm out in public, I have to be put together. When I get home, I rebel against it." Don't think husband Jay-Z hasn't noticed. "That is [the] most difficult thing for him," Beyonce says. "He's very, very organized."

Brown out?

Heard the rumor that Chris Brown is getting "erased" from marketing materials for the upcoming crime thriller "Bone Deep" because of his legal troubles? Untrue, according to Entertainment Weekly's Web site. A statement from Screen Gems says any reports about marketing for the movie, in which Brown co-stars, are "completely false." "Bone Deep" is due out next year.

Jeezy does it

Has Young Jeezy entered the realm of rap royalty? That's how Entertainment Weekly is framing the Atlanta rapper's move to sign with Hip-Hop Since 1978, the same powerhouse management firm that represents Kanye West and Lil Wayne. Jeezy meanwhile is prepping for his acting debut in "Janky Promoters," an upcoming film featuring actor/rapper Ice Cube.
